

What is Aikido?

Aikido is a powerful system of self-defense that blends with the energy of your opponent to render their attacks harmless.

Through regular practice, adults may use Aikido as a means to enhance and maintain their health and flexibility.

In addition, children are taught self-discipline and the virtues of respecting themselves and others. Through the harmony and balance of circular blending movements, Aikido aims to unite the spirit and body of each practitioner.

The achievement of this goal can be accomplished only through the accumulation of the experience gained through sincere daily practice. Since Aikido has as its base the rigorous strictness of the traditional martial arts of Japan, each technique includes all the elements of offense and defense.

Since competition often raises negative emotional qualities that are contrary to the harmonious spirit of Aikido, we offer regularly scheduled non-compulsory testing evaluations for those students who desire to advance in rank.

These testing sessions are based on a nationally recognized series of guidelines and requirements developed by T.K. Chiba, Shihan and ensure the strong transmission of O Sensei's Aikido throughout the United Kingdom and Europe.

In Aikido, men and women of all ages cooperate in daily practice aimed at making the mind and body become more harmonious with nature. Because of its great versatility, Aikido may be practiced by both young and old as a martial art for self-defense as well as a method of physical and spiritual training.